

TOMORROW

The man who thinks of tomorrow—of his future comfort—of the protection of his family—INSURES HIS PROPERTY TODAY. If it burns it will not break him. The insurance company pays the damage.

TODAY

The one who thinks only of today—who considers only the slight expense of the moment—who forgets the future security of his family—DOES NOT INSURE. When the property burns it cripples him or wipes him out completely.

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Hoag were up from Malaga the middle of the week, shopping and visiting.

A. L. Moritzky, of Malaga, left Saturday night for the home of his mother at Roswell, she being reported dangerously ill at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hall, were registered at the Montezuma Hotel in Santa Fe this week, they spending part of their honeymoon in the Ancient City.

We are sorry to announce that the condition of Peter Beckmann, who has been in Sisters Hospital for some weeks, is not improved and it looks as though his death would be but a question of a short time.

Mrs. Clarence Bell and sons and little daughter, returned from California where the boys had been attending school and Mrs. Bell and Gertrude have been visiting, getting in Monday evening.

A number of Woonmen from the camp at Artesia were down to attend the meeting of Carlsbad Woonmen last Thursday night. Among those present were Emmett Klopfenstein, Max Ready, Clin Cole, Ira Klopfenstein and Robert House.

V. L. Sullivan, wife and children of El Paso, Texas, are visiting at Millan Dam, guests of Mr. H. C. Gumb father of Mrs. Sullivan. She is a former Carlsbad girl, having attended school in this city and after taught in the schools of the country.

Captain Bates and family, after a visit in Carlsbad, of several days, returned to Roswell, and left that place last Sunday for Berkeley, California, at which city they expect to make their home. Captain Bates having already made arrangements to go into business there. Regret is widespread at losing these fine people from among us.

C. D. Billings, who had spent almost a year in this city, coming here from Big Springs, Texas, left for his home at Atlanta, Georgia, Saturday morning. Mr. Billings declined steadily in health during his stay here and the trip home was thought necessary. He is an experienced newspaper man and a commercial artist of some prominence, before his health broke down.

MUCH FERMENT IN WASHINGTON OVER ELECTION

Washington, June—Throughout the country interest in politics may be lagging. Not so in Washington. Here at the Nations capital, the well known cauldron may not be exactly seething as yet, but it is simmering appreciably and before another month has passed it will be bubbling merrily. Thirty-four senatorships and every seat in the house of representatives are the national stakes for which the parties will contend at the polls in November. The senators and four hundred odd representatives whose successors are to be chosen are here, and each has his secretaries, clerks, and political hangers-on who are deeply concerned in the result.

Also, the popular verdict in the congressional election will be hailed as one of approval or disapproval of the Harding administration. Hence the local ferment, and it is not surprising if Washington just now is paying more attention to politics than is in evidence in any other part of the country.

Two notable primary contests during the month of May served to whet the interest of Washingtonians in things political. One was in Indiana where former Senator Albert J. Beveridge wrested the republican nomination from Senator Harry S. New. The other was in Pennsylvania, where Gifford Pinchot came home a winner in the gubernatorial stakes, defeating Attorney General Alter, the organization candidate. Both results, it may be said, were contrary to general expectation.

Both Beveridge and Pinchot, he it remembered, were progressives when Theodore Roosevelt was the great figure in the embattled hosts at Armageddon, and their victories against the forces of the party organization in their respective states are extremely significant. Some of the political leaders deny this, but the fact remains that they were not expected to win and they did not win. Thermometers that register the political temperature hereabouts gave a decided jump when the news came from Indiana after May 2 and another when Pennsylvania was heard from after May 16. The returns from the next primaries will be awaited with anything but idle curiosity as everybody wants to know if there is to be more of the unexpected.

Iowa Comes Next
Iowa comes next with primaries on June 5 to select the party candidates for the senatorship now held by Charles A. Rawson. This is the seat held so long by William S. Kenton, who resigned a few weeks ago to accept a federal judgeship tendered him by President Harding. The full list of Senators, candidates to succeed whom are still to be chosen together with the states and the dates of the party primaries or conventions thus far fixed follow: (Cut out list for reference).

Present senator.
Porter J. McCumber, North Dakota, June 28.
Charles A. Culberson, Texas, July 22.

James A. Reed, Missouri, August 1.

Claude A. Swanson, Virginia, August 1.

Howard Sutherland, West Virginia, August 1.

Atlee Pomerene, Ohio, August 8.

John B. Kendrick, Wyoming, August 8.

John Sharp Williams, Mississippi, August 15.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Nebraska, August 18.

Hiram W. Johnson, California, August 29.

Henry L. Myers, Montana, August 29.

Key Pittman, Nevada, September 5.

Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin, September 5.

Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona, September 12.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts, September 12.

Charles E. Townsend, Michigan, September 12.

Carroll S. Page, Vermont, September 12.

William M. Calder, New York, September 19.

J. C. Frelinghuysen, New Jersey, September 27.

George P. McLean, Connecticut, date not fixed.

Coleman DuPont, Delaware, date not fixed.

Joseph I. France, Maryland, date not fixed.

Andrus A. Jones, New Mexico, date not fixed.

Peter G. Gerry, Rhode Island, date not fixed.

Kenneth McKellar, Tennessee, date not fixed.

William H. King, Utah, date not fixed.

Interest centers largely in these senatorial contests for many reasons. In the first place, they together with Indiana and Pennsylvania, will be staged in the most important states of the union. Secondly, the senate is the greatest parliamentary body in the world today.

It deals directly not only with the most vital problems of the American people but with those of great international moment, and its personnel is important. Moreover some big men are involved. Lodge, of Massachusetts, is the Republican leader of the senate and the chairman of the committee on foreign relations; McCumber, of North Dakota is the chairman of the great committee on finance which has jurisdiction over tariff-making and taxation; LaFollette, of Wisconsin, has long been the stormy petrel of the senate and of republican national politics, and Johnson of California, once progressive nominee for vice president and more recently candidate for republican presidential honors, looms large from any political viewpoint.

Interest in Missouri Struggle
On the democratic side, Culberson, of Texas, is one of the veterans of the senate, and Hitchcock, of Nebraska; Pomerene, of Ohio, and Williams of Mississippi, are recognized minority leaders. Reed of Missouri, in the fight he is making to retain his seat, probably arouses more interest than any of the democrats.

Reed is opposed for the democratic nomination by Brackenridge Long, former assistant secretary of state under the Wilson administration. Long is a young man without a notable political record, and cannot be said to be a figure of national size. However, the Missouri struggle is of general interest and of national importance because of the fight which Reed made in the senate against most of the Wilson policies, especially the Wilson league of nations program, and because of the fight which Woodrow Wilson is now making to defeat Reed. The former president may not have injected himself into this fight but he has been drawn into it, and he has vigorous unmistakable language done everything that the use of can do to bring about Reed's retirement to private life.

The returns from the Missouri primary of August 1, therefore, will be scanned eagerly by all those who are concerned to know just how much of a hold Woodrow Wilson still has on the democratic party. A new epoch in the history of democracy may date from that event, and it is certain that the result will have an important bearing on democratic presidential politics of 1924.

After the nominations have been made interest will be focused, of course on the November battle of the ballots when the political complexion of the next congress will be determined. In importance this election ranks with two other notable off-year contests—1910 and 1918. In the former republicans went down to inglorious defeat, and in the latter the democrats bumped the bumps. As to 1922—hang up a large question mark but the odds are in favor of the democrats.

A SAD DEATH

Mrs. Mamie Ladd, wife of Jim Ladd, died at Eddy County Hospital, of Typhoid fever, last Saturday. She was brought to that institution six days before her passing, and it was seen from the first that very little chance was left for her. The family consisting of her husband and a baby six months old came originally from Texas, the husband and father working at various times for the farmers in the lower valley. She was only eighteen years old at the time of her death, and many were moved to tears at sight of the little all unconscious of its loss, as it lay in the arms of its father. The funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at the agency side, Reverend O'Connell reading the committal service and making a few brief remarks. Stranger friends, touched with sympathy for the bereft relatives, provided flowers and accompanied the little procession on the sad journey to the city of the dead, where the body awaits the resurrection.

Frank Ohnemus, a former resident of this city and a brother of R. Ohnemus, was taken violently ill at his home in Artesia last week, from an attack of acute indigestion and an internal hemorrhage. He is gradually getting better at this time, but his condition was very grave for several days.

Miss Graham, one of the High School faculty, left the latter part of last week, accompanied by her brother, Spencer, for Boulder, Colorado, where they will attend the summer session of the State University of Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kay and little niece, Carrie Lee East, who are spending part of the summer with relatives in Carlsbad, together with Miss Perry and Elliott Perry, motored to the Thayer ranch in the Guadalupe, Sunday and had a fine time with the minimum amount of tire trouble, and tell us the roads in that part of the country are not as bad as they had expected.

W. C. Bates left this week for Bluewater where he has a ranch, which needed his presence and over sight.
